

Miss Fasano's T-K Weekly News!

Week of February 7, 2022

Email: jfasano@icsclinton.org

Check out my ICS teacher page!

Upcoming Events

2/14: Valentine's Day Party (Please send in Valentines's on this day)

2/18: ICS "Big School" Half Day

2/21: No School (Presidents' Day)

2/22: Twosday!

2/23: Dentist Visit

3/02: Ash Wednesday (TK will be attending mass and receiving ashes! Please let me know if you have any concerns.)

3/03: ICS "Big School" Half Day

This Week's Learning

- Count to 100
 - Counting by 10s
 - Counting by 1s
- Letter/Word Recognition
- Sight Words
- Color Focus: (Pink)
- My snowman melted
- Healthy Teeth
- Healthy Food vs Unhealthy Food
- 5 Little Snowmen
- "Reading the Room"
- 100th Day of School
- Using our words to express our needs, wants and feelings
- Graphing

Classroom Needs/Wishlist

- Scotch Tape, Gallon sized Ziploc bags, white paper plates, lysol wipes

Using Our Words

This week we have highlighted the importance of using our words to express our wants, needs and or feelings. It is so important that each child uses their words to tell me and Mrs. Saam if they need something or if they need to express their feelings to us. We practice when we're doing small group instruction, one on one instruction and whole group instruction especially. I want each child to feel comfortable telling us when they need something. Please encourage your child to practice this at home!

Reading/Writing

For the past few weeks, have introduced an activity that has made your child aware of all the words in our classroom environment. It is called "Reading and Writing the Room". The children will work together, small groups and or independently to accomplish this activity. Each child will independently become a "word detective". Your child will independently search the classroom and fins one word at a time that he/she can read. Next, your child will either write the word on a piece of paper./chalkboard/whiteboard or use magnetic letters.

The children have been doing so great at this, and I'm so incredibly proud of their progress in such a

